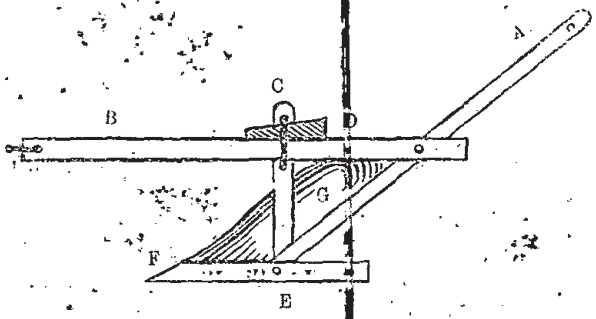
No. 51.—In publishing the accompanying description of a cheap, light and useful plough manufactured at the Cawnpore Farm Workshop, after the best American model, the public are informed that samples of the plough are to be seen at the Lal-Bagh, Bangalore.

THE 'KAISAR' PLOUGH.

Adopted from the best American models, and manufactured at the Cawnpore Farm Workshops under the Department of Agriculture and Commerce, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

DIAGRAM.



A. The handle (of wood).
B. The beam (of wood).
C. The standard (of iron).
D. The wedge (of wood).
E. The sole (of angle iron).
F. The share (of steel).
G. The breast (of sheet iron).

DESCRIPTION OF THE PLOUGH.

The characteristics of this plough are—

(i) Cheapness—it only costs Rs. 6 at Cawnpore, and could probably be made up by a Native Mestri for Rs. 4-8 or Rs. 5.

(ii) Lightness in weight—it only weighs 16 seers, and can, therefore, be easily carried on the ploughman's shoulder, and in draught—it can easily be drawn by a pair of ordinarily good bullocks since its draught is only 62 seers on the bullocks, when ploughing at a depth of 5 inches in moderately light soils.

(iii) Simplicity of construction—it is made entirely of wrought iron and wood, so as to be easily repairable. All the iron work, except the share, can be purchased in any bazar, consisting as it does of a piece of angle-iron (for the sole), a strip of sheet iron (for the mould board), and an iron bar (for the standard).

The share is made of steel, and is, therefore, durable. When it has worn down it can be easily replaced by a new one, since it is attached in the simplest manner possible, and can easily be slipped on or off at any time.

There are no screws and nuts on the plough, and all attachments are effected by simple rivets.

(iv) It can easily be adjusted—so as to suit soils of any consistency or bullocks of any height.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

The plough is attached to the yoke by a rope fastened to the iron ring at the end of the beam.

The higher the bullocks are the longer the rope should be: the rope should also be longer in ploughing hard soils than in ploughing loose soils. The average length is from 7 feet 3 inches to 7 feet 9 inches. The length it should be in each case can be discovered in a few minutes experiment.

The plough should travel perfectly evenly on its sole, and should need no downward pressure on the handle to keep the heel down, nor lifting to keep the point down. For this purpose it will be necessary to alter the adjustment, if the bullocks are of a different height, or the soil of a different consistency to what the plough was intended for when sent out.

If the point of the plough has a tendency to dig down into the ground, and the plough travels on its point, take out the wooden wedge on the beam and shift the standard back along the beam, towards the handle.

This will lift the point up.

If on the other hand the point has a tendency to run up out of the ground, shift the standard forward along the beam.

This will depress the point.

If the plough be not properly adjusted, the draught is much heavier on the bullocks than it should be.

THE CAPABILITIES OF THE PLOUGH.

It will, with a pair of ordinarily good bullocks and one man (driving with reins fastened to the horns of the bullocks) plough ½ acre (=1 pucka Cawnpore bigha) in a day of 7 hours.

It inverts the soil to the depth of 5 inches and does not merely stir it. The advantages of thus inverting the soil are:—

(i) Any manure which has been spread is effectually buried.

(ii) All weeds are killed and so utilized as manure.

(iii) Fresh soil is brought up to the surface which, after some exposure, becomes in most cases more fertile than the upper crust was.

(iv) A greater depth of soft soil is secured than is possible with the native plough, except after 10 or 12 ploughings; and the soil absorbs water more readily and will need less artificial irrigation.

For the proper working of the plough it is necessary that the soil be in ploughing condition, i. e., sufficiently damp for a native cultivator to plough it with his own plough.

☞These ploughs are obtainable on application to the Office of Director, Department of Agriculture and Commerce, Cawnpore, at a price of Rs. 6 each.

The 14th September 1880.

No. 54.—It is hereby notified for public information that all the rights of the present jodidars and kayamguttadars in the undermentioned jodi and kayamgutta villages in the Hoskote Taluk of the Bangalore District, which have been duly attached in satisfaction of the arrears of revenue due to Government (as shewn in the subjoined statement) by the said jodidars and kayamguttadars, will be sold by public auction at the places and on the dates mentioned in the annexed statement. The sale will commence at 11 A. M. on the dates specified and the villages will be knocked down to the highest bidder without reserve.

3. When such deposit shall not be made nor the remaining purchase money paid up, the lands shall be re-sold at the expense and risk of the first purchaser.

4. Persons bidding at the sale may be required to state whether they bid on their own account or as agents, and in the latter case to deposit a written authority signed by their principals, otherwise their bids will be rejected.

5. The sale shall be stayed, if the defaulter, or any other person acting on his behalf or claiming an interest in the land, tenders the full amount of the arrears of revenue with interest and other charges, provided such tender be made before sunset on the day previous to that appointed for the sale.

6. The sale of the property will not become absolute until the sale has been confirmed by the Chief Commissioner.

7. Purchasers having completed the payment of the purchase money will, as soon as the sale has been confirmed by the Chief Commissioner, be placed in immediate possession and the village will be registered in the name of the purchaser, and a certificate of sale signed and sealed by the Deputy Commissioner will be granted to him. It is to be distinctly understood that the Government are not responsible for errors of description and in estimated extent.

8. Provided parties deeming themselves aggrieved by the sale shall be at liberty to appeal to the Chief Commissioner within thirty days from the day of sale, and the purchase shall be conditional on the final order in such appeal.
